Proposed Creative Europe project – to which project are you looking for partners?

Sector or field	Nature, sustainability, science, cultural heritage, sustainable tourism, video and photography, environmental education, eco-tourism, cultural outreach, community engagement, exploration, expeditions, adventures, storytelling, and the preservation of almost-forgotten or untold histories.
Description or summary of the proposed project	We are open to any project related with our sector or fields. We seek to engage in projects where we can add value through our expertise. Our goal is to promote nature conservation, scientific outreach, and cultural heritage through art, media, culture, community work, and sustainability. Nunatak is dedicated to creating projects that combine the spirit of adventure and exploration with the preservation of nature and cultural heritage. Our projects often take us to remote locations, where we engage with local communities to uncover and preserve stories that have been forgotten or untold. By documenting these stories through film, photography, and immersive media, we aim to raise awareness about the environmental and cultural challenges these communities face and highlight their importance in the broader narrative of global sustainability. However, we are open to any project we consider of interest to sustainability, nature, community and culture.

Which kind of projects are you looking for?	We are particularly interested in projects that explore the intersection of expeditions, adventure, community engagement and nature conservation. Our focus is not only on showcasing the beauty and challenges of working with local communities in remote, vulnerable regions but also on highlighting the pressing environmental issues these areas face. Through engaging and educational content, we aim to raise public awareness about the importance of protecting our planet's ecosystems, wildlife, and biodiversity. By including the voices and knowledge of local communities, we hope to foster a greater understanding of the human-nature connection and promote sustainability in practical and impactful ways. Our past work, including projects such as "Beyond the Glacier" and "Salvajes," exemplifies our commitment to exploring hidden narratives—whether those of marginalized communities or unreported environmental phenomena. These projects have allowed us to delve into the intersections of nature, culture, and community, and we believe these untold stories are vital for understanding our collective environmental responsibility.

The types of projects we are seeking to partner on include:

- 1. Expeditions and Adventures: Projects that involve exploration, including scientific expeditions, eco-adventures, and rediscovery of forgotten places. These projects engage local communities and support environmental conservation, highlighting the balance between adventure and nature preservation.*
- 2. Documenting Untold Stories: Projects that focus on revealing and preserving the histories of local communities and their relationship with the environment. These could cover environmental struggles, the importance of sustainable practices, or the cultural significance of natural landscapes.*
- 3. Community Engagement: Projects that recognize the role of local knowledge in addressing global challenges like climate change, biodiversity loss, and sustainable development. We are particularly interested in creating educational media that amplifies these communities' voices and provides a platform for sharing their sustainable practices.*
- 4. Eco-tourism and Sustainable Development: Collaborative initiatives aimed at creating eco-tourism projects that engage local populations in promoting their natural and cultural heritage. These projects would prioritize sustainability while supporting conservation efforts and creating opportunities for local economic growth.*
- 5. Sustainability Through Exploration: Projects that combine exploration with sustainability, examining the role of adventure and scientific discovery in protecting ecosystems and endangered species. These initiatives would provide a holistic approach to preserving both natural landscapes and the communities that depend on them.*

We are open to collaborating with partners who share our passion for storytelling and our commitment to preserving nature, culture, and sustainability. Together, we can create impactful projects that inspire global change, raise awareness about environmental challenges, and celebrate the stories of communities working at the intersection of culture and conservation.
